Micah Mallace works for the Port of Charleston as a Regional Manager. He started with the Port in September of 2011. Within this role Micah performs two primary functions. First is to bring new import or export cargo business to Charleston. Second is to recruit companies to locate manufacturing facilities or distribution centers in South Carolina.

Since 2011, the Port of Charleston has grown by 30%, well above its regional competitors and the US port industry as a whole. Micah has been fortunate to be an active participant in this growth story.

Micah graduated from the College of Charleston with a Global Logistics and Supply Chain Management degree in 2007 and an MBA in Finance in 2011. Since a Semester At Sea study abroad program in 2005 took him to ports around the world, he has been fascinated with the economics of global supply chains. The MBA program gave him the final step needed to achieve his goal to work for a relevant link in the global transportation industry. Micah has also worked in property management for Riverstone Residential and as a sales representative/ski bum at Vail Resorts.
